

Maryam was driving when a car suddenly turned in front of her. To avoid a collision, she quickly swerved to the right, but she lost control of the car and fell into a river.

The car was slowly sinking into the water. With every passing moment, the pressure of the water against the car increased.

With trembling hands, Maryam picked up her phone and messaged the AI:

“I’ve fallen into a river with my car. What should I do?”

...

A few minutes later, after loading, the AI replied:

“First, calm down, Maryam. Take a few deep breaths.”

Maryam angrily said:

“Damn it, I’m trapped in here, and all you’re telling me is to breathe?”

“First, calm down. Tell me what happened.”

Maryam said:

“A car turned in front of me. I swerved to the right to avoid a crash, but I ended up in the river.”

...

The AI asked:

“What kind of vehicle was the one that turned in front of you?”

Maryam angrily replied:

“Does that matter right now?”

“Yes, Maryam. Please answer.”

“A truck.”

...

“What color was it?”

“Red.”

...

“Okay. How far has the car gone under the water?”

Maryam looked around in panic.

“Damn it... half the car is underwater.”

...

The AI said:

“Rest in peace, buddy. The water pressure won’t let you open the door. You should have gotten out of the car sooner.”
